

Metonymical Tact Extension

“Simply, one word substitutes for another.”

Cooper et. al., 2020

Saying “police man” upon seeing a police car.

Saying “home run” upon seeing a baseball field.

Verbal responses to novel stimuli that share none of the relevant features with the original stimulus configuration, but some irrelevant but related features has acquired stimulus control.

Cooper et. al., 2020

